There can be no question but what they have fully won the promotion. ALLIES SOLIDLY UNITED.

The approval with which the reply which was made by President Wilson to the German peace appeal, after questioning that government regard-ing its position thereon, has been re-ceived by the countries with which the United States is fighting the central powers, indicates that he was prety closely in touch with the sentiment which prevailed in those nations.

It likewise shows that there is to perfect harmony in all probability ong the allied powers in regard to he presentation of the terms of an arnistice which of course is as it should be. If Germany hoped to bring about a split of the affice by attempting to endorse the conditions set forth by President Wisson for peace in the expectation that such would not meet with the approval of the entente, and people that 'everything possible had een done and because an agreement would be necessary to rally more strongly than ever to the support of he Hohenzollern government, it mus alize that it has made a mistake.

Not a little interest has been roused by the position which the president has taken regarding candidates for seats in congress. He has marks which serve better than distinctive marks which are not always in evidence. Do you realize that no book can hold all of truth, and no mortal mind can comprehend it, for truth pervades the universe, and is it! We find it much easier to speak the truth than to live it: and the truth we take from others and do not let possess us and become our possession, is like a false tooth or a mask. There is no fooling with truth. There are times when even the truth is dangerous, when prudence requires that it should be hidden in silence. That old proverb, "Tell the truth and shame the Devil," was made before it was discovered that "Discretion is the better part of valor." It is always more profitable to apply the truth to ourselves and to try to make it manifest in our lives than to atmore we keep truth within us the better we shall know the way of truth. We never can be as great as truth; but truth can develop greatness in us.

That the president meant what he said in his reply is emphasized by the fact that over two million Americans are in Europe or on the way to back it up.

It ought not to take long to determine whether the war lords or the people are really in control in Germany.

Every child that would gather from four to seven pounds of nuts would save one soldier from the poison gas. pounds of nuts to make one gas mask.

In the meantime, therefore, it is necessary that we distribute as widely as possible, the stock that we are manufacturing daily together with that now on the jobbers and retailers shelves, in order that it may get to the Influenza districts quickly. Last week a Norwich soldier in camp appealed to friends here for a sweater, claiming that he was nearly frozen. Needless to say, he had one at once.

It seems to me it would be better to have duplicates of two or ever three to have duplicates of two or ever three than to expose our drafted boys lives. The Red Cross chapters have taken good care heretofore of the men who are giving so much for their country. Why not leave it still to the judgment of our splendid chapters?

STORIES OF THE WAR

Starting a Bombing Raid.

(Correspondence of The Associated Presa.)

The start of an American bombing squadron on a raid into German territory is a spectacle to stir the enthusiasm of an American and inspire him with an appreciation of America's growing strength in the air.

The squadron already had been over the German lines twice that day with fair success and the aviators lounged in shady spots, jibling one another or idly commenting upon the evolutions

The aviators sprang to their feet and gathered about their leader for the final instructions. He had not been at all satisfied with the two perform-ances of the day. They had shown a tendency to straggle overmuch and had not kept sufficiently bunched.

"God help a straggler."

Then, the ordeal over, the aviators went silently to their quarters for their great, heavy Arctic clothing. In the turn of a hand they were back on the field, swathing and awaddling themselves to the aves tucking chocohemselves to the eyes, tucking choco themselves to the eyes, tucking choco-late into their pockets (for they get hungry up in the air) or breaking open a fresh package of chewing gum, which helps to alleviate nervousness and has a steadying effect.

The last machine gun had been test-ed, the last propeller had been twirt-ed until it revolved at lighting speed. The commander save an almost inner-taxi-ing was gone. The machines had become graceful birds in fact.

Swiftly they rose, while still within sight, to a great height, looking for all the world like a flock of geese with the leader at the neck of the formation. Out of a concealed and camouflaged office hit there stepped suddenly the flight leader. Lieutenant Gunderlach, who aiready has been named in the official American communique for prowess in the air.

Hot criticism poured from his lips and the youngsters were sitent in embarrassment. The leader did not spare them, but iterated and reiterated that "the formation is the thing," and, finally, "GAA help a streether."

In addition to the usual method of using VapoRub—that is applied over the throat and chest and covered with hot flannel cloths—our customers are writing us daily telling of their success in using VapoRub in other ways, particusarly as a preventive. They meit a little in a spoon and inhale the vapors arising, or meit it in a benzoin steam kettle. Where the steam kettle is not available, VapoRub can be used in an ordinary tea-kettle. Fill the teakettle half full of boiling water, put in half a teaspoon of VapoRub from time to time—keep the kettle just slowly boiling and inhale the steam arising.
